

Loyola Cagers Set Sights On M-D Crown

Tourney Outlook

By BILL LOHNES
Sports Editor, The Greyhound

League standings, won-lost records, and personal averages, all go out the window tonight, when the top eight teams in the Mason-Dixon conference tangle in the opening round of the winner-take-all annual basketball tournament, which will be held this year at Catholic U.

American U. and the amazing Baltimore U. Bees, 1958-59 seasonal circuit champion, definitely emerge as the favorites, although Mount Saint Mary's, Catholic U., and our own Greyhounds have an equal chance of capturing the laurels.

The Hounds will probably be underdogs at tap-off time, but don't be surprised if Reitz and Co. are one of the teams taking the floor in the finals, Saturday night.

This is a team that has fought hard to get into the tourney and they're not going to let this opportunity slip through their fingers.

A real "comeback quint," the club has rallied several times during the season to overcome seemingly insurmountable halftime deficits; notably the two Mount Saint Mary's losses.

In the second Mount game, after being down by 17 points at the half, the team rallied behind the adept shooting of Joe O'Hara, who bucketed 22 points, and John Heagney (18). At the end of regulation time, the score was 71 all. From that point on it was anybody's game. The Hounds lost 84-80, only after a spirited effort in double overtime.

The Hounds were hot, and two nights later, they knocked league leading A. U. out of first place in the M-D. In the biggest upset of the year, the Green and Gray again came from 7 points behind in the second half to win 70-68.

Mike Sneeringer, Joe O'Hara, who led the club with well over 200 rebounds, and John Heagney have all had several 20 point or better games this season. Steve Bogusky has started to score with authority, while Gene Nieberlein and Ed Murn have been outstanding under the boards. Ferd Ruppel has been a key playmaker and consistent point maker throughout the season.

TOURNEY TOPICS:

How good can Loyola's John Heagney be? Coach Lefty Reitz admits "I honestly don't know." Even now, He's one of the best outside men in the Conference although only a soph and Loyola pins its tourney hopes on him.

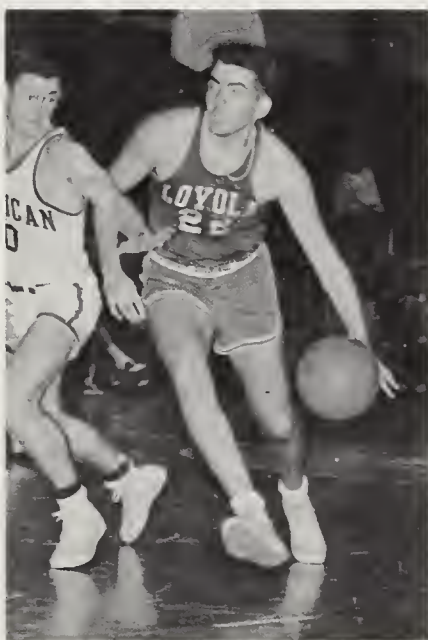

Another soph, Mt. St. Mary's Jerry Savage, has come on with a rush in late season . . . His hot hand almost upended American U. in last year's tourney finale . . . Speaking of the Eagles, they are the only M-D team which has won the regular season title four times and each time gone on to cop the tournament.

Bob Talbot, Catholic U's sensational scorer, received the only basketball scholarship given by the school in the year he entered . . . He's provided a good investment, breaking the school scoring record with over 1,000 points . . . CU, the tourney "dark horse" is coached by Tom Young, who played for Bud Millikan at Maryland last year, and was a classmate of Don Newbery, the Baltimore U. head man.

American U's Dick Wells made an amazing recovery after a shooting accident last spring nearly cost him his life . . . He's fully recovered now and ready to make life uncomfortable for the opposition in the M-D showdown.

Baltimore U. is in for plenty of trouble if opposition's outside men crash for rebounds for that's where the Bees don't hum so well . . . Betcha there's more complaining over charge-block calls than anything else during the M-D showdown.

B.U.'s Newbery Is Mason-Dixon 'Coach-Of-Year'

By ALAN FISCHER

A team which had a 5-15 record last year has suddenly burst into the spotlight and is making amore than serious bid for the Mason-Dixon tournament Crown. The team is Baltimore University, and the man behind their success is Don Newbery, a 27 year old rookie coach.

Taking a young and inexperienced squad, Newbery has molded them into a championship contender. The starting team is composed of Freshment Jack Bychich (20.4) and Brooks Gracie; Sophomores Bill Frantz and Hank Majewski; and Senior Don Conelius. His bench consists of three more freshmen and a junior.

Newbery played only one year of basketball in high school in New Jersey. In 1951 he went into the army and served in Korea. Longing for a job in basketball, Don enrolled in the University of

Catholic U. Host To 3-Day Tourney

By BOB FLEISHMAN

The annual Mason-Dixon Conference Basketball Tournament gets underway tonight at Catholic University, with at least five teams with excellent chances to win, and go on the NCAA Small-college tournament.

Baltimore U., regular-season champions; and American U., runner-up, are pre-tourney favorites; but Loyola, Mt. St. Mary's and Catholic U. all have definite chances to wrap up the crown. Randolph-Macon and Lynchburg have very little chance and Washington College, who just made the tournament, has none.

A lot will depend on the opening round pairings.

The winner of the B.U. game will play the Catholic U. victor in the semifinals while the other game will pit the American U. winner against the winner of the Randolph-Macon game. These four teams were top-seeded.

Baltimoe U., the "Cinderella team" of the league, will be led by its high-scoring Jack Bychich, and another flashy freshman, Brooks Gracie. A well-balanced club that makes the other team play B.U.'s way, they can go all the way. American, with potentially the best team in the league will be tough to beat. Willie Jones, Dick Wells and Company are mighty rough in the big games.

Mt. St. Mary's was the hottest team the last half of the year, after losing high-scoring Ernie Cage. The Mounts jelled and Jerry Savage and Bert Sheing are deadly when on. Not too much is known about Randolph-Macon or Lynchburg. The Yellowjackets are led by Carl Koenig and Jerry Suyes, while Lynchburg is paced by Tom Barile and Tom Bennet. Washington College's Dick Callahan is their only threat, and he may not be enough. C.U., playing on its home court, will have Bob Talbot, scoring for them.

As for the other team in the tournament, what's the little fellow's name? Heagney?

Heagney Leads Hounds

By BOB FLEISHMAN

The leading scorer on this year's Greyhound basketball team is a six-foot, 175-pound sophomore from Brooklyn, New York. His name is John Heagney and his hustle and finesse have carried the Hounds into the Mason-Dixon Tournament.

John Heagney

Heagney has one of the deadliest shooting eyes in the M-D wheel. Last year, as a freshman, he swished 42% of his field goal attempts. This season, Heagney has hit for a 14.2 average, reaching double figures his last thirteen games in a row for a 16.8 streak. He has hit double figures eighteen times this campaign, high on the team, and was the leading scorer in the game ten times.

The main factor that has impressed everyone about Heagney is his remarkable poise. He knows every second what to do with the ball, and usually does it. In the last few games, Heagney has developed a good two-hand set shot, to go along with this great jump shot, and driving layups.

Heagney will be the big gun in the tournament for Loyola, and the best thing about it is he'll be around Evergreen for two more years.

Nieberlein, Ruppel, Deinlein Play Last Games For Greyhounds In Tourney

By JOE BOSSLE

Three members of the Greyhound basketball squad have played their last game on the home court. They are the seniors, who have honorably represented the name of Loyola on the hardwood, Gene Nieberlein, Ferd Ruppel and Don Deinlein.

Gene Nieberlein, this year's captain, was a standout high school athlete, while attending Mt. St. Joe. After one year at the University of Dayton, Gene returned to Baltimore and entered Loyola. Due to his transfer, he was ineligible for interscholastic competition during his sophomore year. Last year he came into his own as a fine rebounder and dependable scorer. This year his rebounding and defensive play have been outstanding while he has contributed 9 points per game with his scoring.

Ferd Ruppel, a graduate of Loyola High, served his basketball apprenticeship on the "B" squad during his first two years and graduated to the varsity last year. Ferd, who is also a member of the track squad, has a knack for making the big play. His all around, heads-up inspired play and hustle have had a decided sparking effect on the team.

Don Deinlein is another graduate of Mt. St. Joe. A fine all around athlete, Don is a very fine baseball player. Definitely the hustling type, Don has always done his best and given his all for the team.

Ferd Ruppel, Gene Nieberlein, and Don Deinlein round out their basketball careers at Loyola.

O'Hara, Sneeringer, Heagney, Murn, Four Others To Return Next Year

For the second straight year, only three players are slated to leave the basketball team via graduation. It is hoped that these are all who will leave. Last year, besides Denny McGuire, Jack Cummings, and Joe Watkins, several others either flunked out or just withdrew. Just think where the Hounds might have wound up this season if they had had Bucky Foote and Tom Keys.

As it is, Loyola will lose Gene Nieberlein, it's captain; Ferd Ruppel and Don Deinlein.

But the outlook for next year is bright, if all return. The top three scorers from this year's squad will be around, along with a fourth who was a starter the last part of the season.

John Heagney, who led the Greyhounds in scoring with a 14 pt. average; Mike Sneeringer (12 pt. average) and Joe O'Hara (11 pt. average), will be back and so will Steve Bogusky, the husky freshman from New York who broke into the starting lineup mid-way of the season and scored consistently.

Ed Murn, the boy who had so much tough luck most of the year, but who started to score more heavily the last few games, will be back to continue his great rebounding.

Three reserves who saw little action could move up as did Ruppel this year. These are Dave Marshall, Tom Gray, and Dave Carney.

Maryland, majoring in Physical Education. He was a member of Terrapin Coach Bud Millikan's staff, and compiled scouting reports for him. In his spare time, Newbery pored over films of ACC games.

Upon graduating, Newbery was offered the head coaching job at Baltimore U., which he promptly accepted.

Easily, Don Newbery must be considered as Mason-Dixon Conference "Coach-of-the-Year."

—Wrestling Team Returns To Evergreen—

Coach Lohrey instructs his squad

Phil Lohrey Will Coach Matmen; Tutored Wrestling At Baltimore U.

For the past several years Loyola College had always entered three athletic teams in Mason-Dixon Tournaments, a basketball, a swimming, and a wrestling team. For the year 1957-58 only two teams were entered. The wrestling team had disbanded.

Would wrestling ever return to the college? This was the question asked by many students and faculty members. In order for any team to start up, three requirements must be met. First of all you have to have boys willing to wrestle, enough to keep a team going. Second, these boys must be of college wrestling caliber. And third, there must be a coach.

A notice was posted, nearly twenty boys showed up, and it was discovered that many of the boys had experience and could make the grade as a college wrestler. Now a coach was needed.

The school got in touch with a former Loyola graduate, Phil Lohrey, who is quite prominent in Baltimore wrestling circles. Lohrey said he would be more than glad to take the job as instructor.

Phil Lohrey started wrestling at McDonogh School. He came to Loyola in 1945. At the time there was no wrestling team here, and Lohrey was instrumental in starting one which he captained in his freshman and sophomore years.

Lohrey attended West Point for a year and then returned to Evergreen, where he received his diploma in 1949. During his senior year he also coached football at the Baltimore Junior College.

Starting a coaching career at University of Baltimore in 1951, Lohrey turned out four championship teams in seven years. Some of the outstanding wrestlers who grappled under Lohrey were four time tournament champs, Fred Frommelt and Al Doory. John Toston, BU's present coach also wrestled under Lohrey.

Phil is an insurance broker in the Baltimore area, and is one of the better referees in Maryland Scholastic wrestling. Until the coach, Lohrly will handle the position.

Will Grapple In Tourney To Be Held At Gallaudet

By BOB REITER
Ass't Sports Editor

Wrestling has returned to the sports picture at Loyola College. Although the wrestlers will not undergo a complete campaign, they will take on a few schools and enter a team in the Mason-Dixon tournament, which will be held this year at Gallaudet on Friday and Saturday March 6th and 7th.

Phil Lohrey, former University of Baltimore mat instructor, will tutor this year's grapplers and according to the coach, "the outlook is good for a respectable finish in the tournament." "We have several boys with previous experience," says Lohrey and the rest make up for their lack of experience with desire."

Buck Parr who was an outstanding wrestler and captain of the team at City College is probably the most impressive of the lightweight group. In the tournament, Parr will wrestle in either the 137 or 147 lb. class. At the present time he weighs more than required to be in the former weight, but feels that he should be able to make the limit by March 6. If Parr does make the weight, Joe Abby, who in his sophomore year took a fourth in the tournament, will wrestle at 147.

Bill Iampieri who learned his wrestling at Mount St. Joe will be at 123, and Tom Blair, tabbed by Lohrey as very promising will wrestle at 130.

At 157, Mike Buchness is vying with Gene Bailey. Buchness is quick and strong, and Bailey who prepped at St. Andrews in Delaware has experience. Charlie Carey, one of the best wrestlers at Loyola, will go at either 167 or 177. Carey, like Parr, is having weight difficulties. If he can get down to 167, Charles "Animal" Graham will wrestle 177, but if he fails to make the weight Carey will move up a notch and Soph Jerry Sauer will man 167.

In the unlimited class Mike Cook might have done the job, but the husky Sophomore cracked a bone in his right arm and is finished for the season. That leaves Tom Cantow and Joe Sardillo to fight it out for the post.

Other boys on the squad are Mike Nieberding, Opie Opitz, Vince McGann and Jim Heim.

Last Thursday, the grapplers traveled to Westminster where they put on a good showing against Western Maryland College, and before they travel to Washington next week, they will have scrimmaged B.U. and, possibly, Johns Hopkins.

B.U. will probably be favored to cop top honors. The Bee's have always come up with a good team and this year is no exception. Western Maryland, American U., Catholic U., Towson Teachers, Hopkins, and Gallaudet round out the group of eight which will be competing.

"I'm not saying we're going to win the tournament," remarks Lohrey, "but I do think that we'll surprise a lot of people. All the boys have a good attitude and a lot of spirit. There's no reason why we shouldn't do real well."

Swimmers Defend Crown At Gallaudet U. American U., Roanoke C. Are Leading Contenders

By BILL LOHNES
Sports Editor, The Greyhound

Loyola's 1957-58 Mason-Dixon Conference swimming champions will lay their title on the line, next Saturday, March 7, at Gallaudet University. The occasion will be the final round of the 1959 M-D Tournament. Meet time will be at 8 o'clock.

Providing the opposition for coach Bill Klarner's natators will be squads from American U., Catholic U., Gallaudet U., Roanoke C., Lynchburg C., and Randolph-Macon C.

Last year, it was a tremendous all-out team effort that clinched the title for the aqua-Hounds. Although the Green and Gray captured only the first place medal, they still managed to chalk up enough points to eke out the win over second place finisher Roanoke, 33-30.

Tony Dorn will be defending his diving crown for the third successive year. Dorn, the finest diver at Loyola since the great Jimmy Russell, Possessing near perfect muscular control and bodily discipline has consistently turned in winning performances. Tony is awesome to watch as he goes through the intricate maneuvers of some of the most difficult dives in the handbook.

The tournament, which may be attended by the public, shapes up to be a down-to-the-wire battle between American U, Loyola, and possibly, Roanoke. If things go as expected by some well-informed sources, the final relay may decide the championship.

The squads shape up with American U. having about the best chance to dethrone the high-flying Hounds. The Eagles have an added advantage in that the meet will be conducted in a six lane pool.

Roanoke may play the role of the dark horse again, but in losing one of their outstanding swimmers, Bob Gatley, they should be weakened considerably. Bill Caterson, the fastest man in the conference, is still around, however.

Catholic U. has suffered the loss of butterfly-freestyle man Don Mudd through graduation. Mudd who holds the conference butterfly record and shares in the 400 yd. freestyle relay record, carried the team; and with him gone, C.U.'s winning chances will be slim.

Randy Macon, Gallaudet, and Lynchburg don't figure to cause the leaders too much trouble, although each has some top — flight individual stars.

The Hounds, themselves, should be strong in all events except, perhaps, the distances. Phil Fry and Joe Harrington, who have dropped out of school, left a large void in this department.

Freshman Aquatic Star Had Little Experience

By BILL LOHNES

Swimming is a sport, which requires a great deal of hard work, a tremendous amount of self-discipline, and practice, practice, practice.

Some master the art only after a succession of frustrations, and then, suddenly, they click. Others, in a comparatively short time have enough natural ability to master a stroke almost at once. Ted Herget is a member of the latter group.

On October 12, when tank practice opened, Coach Bill Klarner was, as usual, short of breaststrokers. Herget, who had no previous competitive experience, volunteered to give it a try. After the first week of practice, it was evident that he was a natural.

Ted, has improved with work; so much so, that he set a new Loyola pool record of 2:45.6 for the 200 yard breaststroke in a meet with LaSalle C., during the semester break. He hopes to do even better in the tournament.

Needless to say, coach Klarner is high on his freshman sensation. Several weeks ago, he told this reporter, that Herget could develop into one of the finest natators ever to swim in the conference. "He certainly, has the right temperament, strength, and desire to do so," Klarner enthused.

Klarner was asked whether he thought Herget had the potential to break the 200 yard M-D breaststroke record (2:38.1), which the Loyola mentor currently holds. "Ted still has a lot to learn," the coach replied, "but after he gets a couple of years' experience under his belt, he should have definite possibilities." Klarner has often said that if any one breaks his record, he would like it to be one of his squad members.

Ted, before coming to Loyola, attended Loyola High School and served in the United States Marine Corps. While in the Corps, he was chosen as "Marine of the Month". Earlier this year he was the author of an article, depicting the advantages of being a Marine, which was published in The Greyhound. Characterized by his mild manner and always neat appearance, Ted is an associate of his father Charles Edward Herget, an insurance broker.

Other frosh, who have done well this season, are "Bo" Bavis, another volunteer breaststroker, and backstroker Mile Ennis. Mike Amann has improved his distance stroke, while divers Joe Orlando and Vic Corbin have done well under the tutelage of champ, Tony Dorn.

The Defending MD swimming champs,

Dorn And Karpers End Four Year Tank Career

Tony

Tony Dorn, senior co-captain of the swimming team, 4 time M-D diving champ, all-around athlete and serious student is a remarkable young man. He is a persevering, self-disciplined perfectionist in all that he attempts and he will attempt anything that is asked of him.

During his four years at Loyola in addition to his diving, he has run cross-country, jumped pole-vault and swam the butterfly and breaststroke. Tony has been beaten only once in dual meet competition and never in the M-D. Until this year, he helped out in some of the swimming events, but under growing pressure in his school work, he has abandoned this practice.

As a student, Tony is one of the few who have majored in science, taken advanced R.O.T.C., and participated in sports, and succeeded in all.

Tony Dorn and Mike Karpers

Mike

The only other swimmer that will be lost to the team is the other co-captain, Mike Karpers. Mike is another one of the swimming Karpers; Bernie a butterfly specialist is now a med student at the U. of Maryland and younger brother Paul is swimming breaststroke on the Hound team.

Mike is the tension smasher on the swimming team in addition to being a fine backstroker and freestyle acquiting himself ably, if the need arises.

Coach Klarner feels that Mike accepted the task and responsibility of co-captain very seriously and has done a splendid job at it. He is one of the hardest workers on the team and as a result has had the best year of his career.

The Coach

Bill Klarner graduated from Loyola College in June of 1950. The following year he assumed the reins of Greyhound swimming coach and has held the job ever since.

A varsity natator while at Evergreen, "The Coach" still holds the M-D Conference 200 yard breaststroke record.

During his coaching tenure, Klarner-coached teams have won no less than five conference championships.

A spirited leader, he is constantly posting signs publicizing his team.

Coach Klarner

Versatile George Krapp Performs In Any Event

By PAUL CAWTHORN

To say that George Krapp has an interest in swimming is at best an understatement. After nine meets, he is top dog on the Hounds' swim team, having accumulated 80.75 points thus far in the season.

His versatility has been amply tested by coach Bill Klarner, who has swum George in the first and final relays, the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events, and the 200 yard butterfly.

Of his individual events this year, Krapp has won all but four, and in those four, he placed second. He was partly responsible for the two new pool records set in the relay events recently.

To keep his temperamental Ford percolating, he guards and teaches swimming at the K. of C. pool; and then, for added variety, he teaches swimming and manages a pool during the summer vacation.

However, George does have other interests. A junior majoring in history, he plans tentatively to teach.

In the off-season, he is a runner and high-jumper on the track team. Also, he's a mean man with a basketball.

Oh, yes! If Krapp and his sidekick Tony Dorn ever con you into joining them in a friendly game of pitch (off campus, of course), don't. They're slick, man, slick.

Tank Talk

By JACK LINDUNG

This year's action is not even over yet, and already, natator coach Bill Klarner is looking forward to next year. And according to Klarner, the outlook is good.

The tanksters lose only two men through graduation; Mike Karpers and Tony Dorn, the co-captains of the '58 squad. Karpers has exhibited various strokes this season, while specializing in the backstroke Dorn, although he did not swim as in previous years, continued his unbroken string of conference victories.

Next year to compensate for their loss, Coach Klarner has at least four incoming freshmen from local high schools; plus two sophomores who are ineligible since they were transfer students. Returning next year will be George Krapp, the leading scorer this year, the Powley twins (Seeley and Peter), and Ted Herget, Paul Karpers, Mike Ennis, Bo Bavis, Jerry Preis, Mike Amann, and Joe Orlando.

The team will be weak in diving but it still will be another good team. Vic Corban and Joe Orlando have been learning the fundamentals of diving this season. "They have good potential and I hope they fulfill it next season," says Bill Klarner.

Even though, the squad will sorely miss the services of its two departing four year veterans, the fish will still be in good shape for next season.

Stickmen Optimistic As 'Cross Season Arrives

By LAWRENCE R. STRUM

The lacrosse team is optimistically looking to the coming season, even though they have lost through graduation such standouts as Mickey McFadden and Chuck Franklin, attack; Jim Vaeth mid-field; and Bill Hooper, defense. There are 16 lettermen returning, many of whom have shown good potential in spots in past seasons.

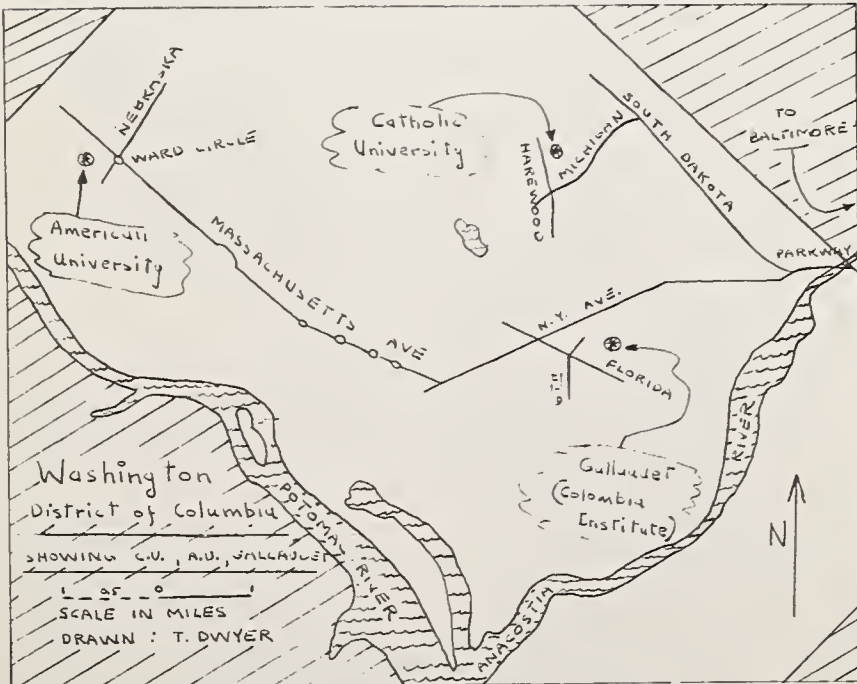

With the addition of Paul Buckmaster, Bill Flattery, and Jack Armstrong to the coaching staff, head coach Charlie Wenzel's burden will be eased. With this additional coaching the squad's potential should have a far greater chance of developing. At any rate, the team is confident of improving on last year's showing.

Returning from last year's team are attackmen Mike McDonough, Hugh Coyle, Bill Noonberg, and Brian Flannery; Midfielders Co-captain Jim Kelly, Jerry Beck, Rick Pyle, Larry Sheridan, Joe Weber, Bob Reiter, and Joe Curran; defensemen Paul Flattery, Ray Kane, Mike Spiegelmire, and Tom Murphy, and goalies Tim Hooper and "Mother" Byrnes.

McDonough, a junior playing his third year with the team should have his best year. Kelly and Beck were on the starting mid-field last year and with the experience they gained could be outstanding. Flattery, a senior and veteran of two seasons play, should be the key man on the defense. Both Byrnes and Hooper were outstanding in spots last year, and if either one becomes more consistent, Loyola will have an excellent goal tender.

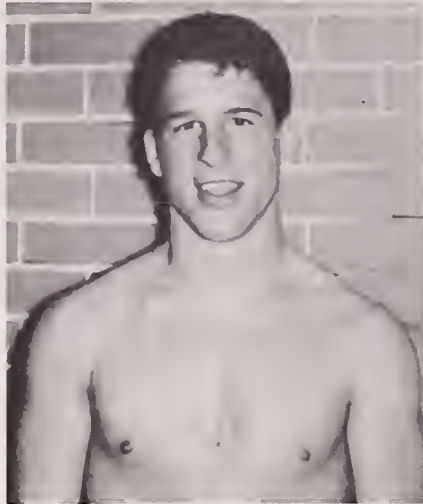

On the whole the team should be much improved. Wenzel is always in need of good reserves, and any one interested is urged to come out.

Individual Scoring Leaders

The Loyola swimming team won the dual-meet championship of the Mason-Dixon Conference last Saturday at Washington. The aqua-Hounds defeated a strong American University squad, 45-40. It was their seventh win in eleven starts. The chart below shows how the individual members fared during the season.

The All-Star vs. Vets game was postponed at the request of the Vets. The game will be played at some future date.

Injuries to Twardowicz and Sneeringer caused the postponement. Both are wished a quick recovery.

Without Twardowicz and Sneeringer, the true potential of the Vets would not have been shown and the outcome might have been a completely different score. The whole student body at Loyola hopes this game will be played.

Ping pong Intramurals have drawn many entries for the singles and doubles championship. Ed Paul has been named by Nap Doherty to take charge of the plywood tournament.

The entries, which have been handed in so far, are: Nick Kollman, M. Amann, Joe Curran, Gordon Schulmeyer, Clark Bowie, Ed Paul, Matt Schwienteck, Chuck Passagno, Jerry Beck, Jim Foley, Buck Parr and James Byrnes.

... congrats are in order for Nap Doherty, Director of Intramurals at Loyola, for the tremendous job that he has done ...
